

Table of Contents

I. Pluricentric Theory

- | | |
|--|----|
| 1. Rudolf MUHR (Graz, Austria): How to kill a mocking bird: On destructive reviewing in German sociolinguistics and the ethics of scientific reviewing | 9 |
| 1b. Rudolf MUHR (Graz, Austria): Checking arguments and data of the pluriareality concept from a pluricentric perspective. (Appendix to Rudolf Muhr (2022a): “How to kill a mocking bird: On destructive reviewing in German sociolinguistics and the ethics of scientific reviewing.”) | 31 |
| 2. Gerhard EDELMANN (Vienna, Austria): The Status of the Moldovan Language | 57 |
| 3. Olga GORITSKAYA / Alexandra CHUDAR (Minsk, Belarus): Pluricentric languages in times of political turbulence: The case of Belarusian Russian | 73 |
| 4. Aditi GHOSH / Rajeshwari DATTA (Kolkata, India): Problematic approaches towards the Non-dominant Languages and Language Varieties in India | 89 |

II. Pluricentric Languages in differing educational contexts

- | | |
|--|-----|
| 5. Máté HUBER (Szeged, Hungary): English and German as pluricentric languages in the Hungarian education system: Teachers’ and learners’ perceptions | 101 |
| 6. Fabienne KORB (Saarbrücken, Germany): Pluricentricity in language education: Representation of language varieties in German students’ digital language portraits | 117 |
| 7. Kelen Ernesta FONYUY (Bamenda, Cameroon): An appraisal of the impact of digital communication on Cameroonian university students’ academic writing in pluricentric English | 131 |

III. The Pluricentricity of Hungarian

- | | |
|--|-----|
| 8. István CSERNICKÓ & Anita MÁRKU & Réka MÁTÉ (Beregszász / Beregovo, Ukraine): The (online) dictionary of pluricentric Hungarian | 145 |
|--|-----|